

Neurosurgery 21

Across

2. - Famous statistician who described the theory of interpretations of probabilities, useful in research where it is impossible to reach the calculated power
8. - These organs are characterised by the lack of blood-brain barrier
9. - Difficulty in inserting a thoracic pedicle screw tends to mean that the entry point was too _____
10. - The recurrent artery of Heubner marks the most _____ border of the medial lenticulostriate arteries
12. - Staphylococcus aureus colonisation can be difficult to treat due to its production of a _____
13. - Choroid plexus tumours in children tend to be _____ tentorial
14. - Osteomas tend to only affect the _____ table of the skull

Down

1. - This author described the 3 sets of criteria for diagnosing NF2
3. - These olfactory cells can be used to harvest stem cells
4. - This type of oxygen therapy may be helpful in treating infections
5. - Bilateral haematoma in this compartment in a baby is highly suggestive of non-accidental injury
6. - The posterior meningeal artery may arise from this artery
7. - In audiometry, this reflex should decay by at least 10% within 10s
11. - This osteotomy allows for access to the upper and middle thirds of the clivus